

Corporate Reputation

Brand and Communication

Stuart Roper
Chris Fill

ALWAYS LEARNING

PEARSON

Corporate Reputation

Brand and Communication

Visit the Corporate Reputation, Brand and Communication Companion Website at www.pearsoned.co.uk/roperfill to find valuable student learning material including:

- Annotated links to relevant sites on the Web
- Video podcasts
- A glossary of key terms

Corporate Reputation, Brand and Communication

Table of Contents

Cover
Corporate Reputation: Brand and Communication
Brief contents
Contents
Guided tour
Preface
- Reasons to read about corporate reputation
- Overview of the book
- Structure
- Design features and presentation
- Support materials

Acknowledgements
Publishers acknowledgements
Part 1 Corporate reputation
- The rise of corporate reputation
  - Aims and learning objectives
  - Introduction
  - Definitions of reputation
  - Why does reputation matter?
  - Levels of reputation average or aggregate?
    - Viewpoint 1.1 Flying in the face of reputation Ryanair
  - Reputational association
    - Viewpoint 1.2 Negative associations for Burberry
  - Reputation may vary its good to be bad?
    - Viewpoint 1.3 Pulp Juice Bars getting fitter
  - The strategic use of reputation
  - Reputations are falling

Pearson

Table of Contents

Viewpoint 1.4 Banking on a reputational crisis

The difficulty of controlling reputation in the 21st century

Viewpoint 1.5 Congested reputation on a charge

Corporate reputation as Gestalt

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

The scope of corporate reputation

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Connecting employees with the company

Viewpoint 2.1 Full cream employment at Cadbury

Corporate identity and its relationship with corporate image and corporate reputation

Viewpoint 2.2 Identity personified at Body Shop

The building blocks of corporate reputation

Influences on corporate reputation

Viewpoint 2.3 Two universities go into one

Criteria that influence corporate reputation

Viewpoint 2.4 Moving culture with MTV

Viewpoint 2.5 Declining reputation at Woolworths

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

The significance of corporate culture

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Who is responsible for corporate reputation?

Viewpoint 3.1 Dyson culturally determined and innovative

Is reputation management embedded in the culture of the organisation?

What is corporate culture?

The types of organisational culture

Viewpoint 3.2 Offside at the Football Association

The difficulty of changing cultures

Viewpoint 3.3 Is the culture nicked at the Met?

Culture and values of the brand

Viewpoint 3.4 Everyone satisfied at John Lewis!

Table of Contents

The employer as brand

Viewpoint 3.5 To find a great place to work . . . Google it!

Quality of management and people management

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Measuring corporate reputation

Aims and learning objectives

What price your reputation?

The reputational audit

The broad indicators of corporate reputation

Viewpoint 4.1 BAs terminal reputation

The financial value of reputation

The development of measures of corporate reputation

Specific tools of reputation measurement

Viewpoint 4.2 Reputational heritage assists Adidas

Viewpoint 4.3 Reputational highs at Richer Sounds

Measuring tangible and intangible facets of corporate reputation

HarrisFombrun Reputation Quotient

Reputation Institutes RepTrak

The Corporate Character Scale

Viewpoint 4.4 Médecins Sans Frontières (Doctors Without Borders)

Best Companies to Work For

Viewpoint 4.5 A delight to work at P3

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Minicases for Part 1

Minicase 1.1 Ericsson from product supplier to solution provider: how corporate reputation can facilitate business transformation

Minicase 1.2 Harley-Davidson balancing corporate image and corporate reputation

Part 2 Corporate branding

The brandingreputation dilemma

Aims and learning objectives

Table of Contents

Branding background

Definitions of a brand

Characteristics of brands

Types of branding

Moving towards corporate branding

The importance of trust to a brand

Viewpoint 5.1 Encyclopaedic brand adaptation

The link between branding and reputation

Brands, reputation and corporate social responsibility

Viewpoint 5.2 FC Barcelona/Aston Villa FC

Viewpoint 5.3 Starbucks rise with CSR

Viewpoint 5.4 CSR old and new perspectives and dilemmas

The triple bottom line

Viewpoint 5.5 Triple hit for The Co-operative Bank

Investigating the co-creation of brands

The emotional power of brands

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

The rise of corporate brands

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Viewpoint 6.1 Unilever develops its profile

Defining corporate brands

Values, culture and personality

Brand promise

Viewpoint 6.2 Disney across the eras

The halo of the corporate brand

The growth of the service industry and corporate branding

Differences between product brands and corporate brands

Viewpoint 6.3 Mixing ingredient brands

The rise of corporate brands

Viewpoint 6.4 Building the corporate brand: Abu Dhabi and Manchester City FC

Strategic problems: gaps in the corporate brand

Success and failure of corporate branding

Viewpoint 6.5 Innovating Chester Zoo

Table of Contents

- Chapter summary
- Discussion questions
- References

Measuring corporate brands

- Aims and learning objectives
- What are brands worth and how are they measured?
  - Viewpoint 7.1 What value Amnesty International?
- Brand equity
  - Viewpoint 7.2 Thrills and spills as Merlin entertains
- Measuring corporate brands
- Difficulties with measuring brands
- Brand personality
- Third sector corporate brands
  - Viewpoint 7.3 Finding a match with Anthony Nolan
  - Viewpoint 7.4 A new identity to reinvigorate the NCT
- Measuring third-sector organisations
- Chapter summary
- Discussion questions
- References

The future for brands

- Aims and learning objectives
- Brands with a comprehensive reputation
  - Viewpoint 8.1 Every little helps Tescos reputation
- Brands that do good
  - Viewpoint 8.2 Unorthodox yet Innocent
- New types of corporate brand
  - Viewpoint 8.3 Face-to-face through Facebook
- New types of brand celebrity brands
  - Viewpoint 8.4 Basket case or just an excellent reputation?
- Authenticity and the brand
- New types of brand country brands
- Brand communities
  - Viewpoint 8.5 Whats the personality: Gates or Jobs?
- The anti-branding movement
- Do we need to love brands?
- The future of branding

Table of Contents

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Minicases for Part 2

Minicase 2.1 David Beckham the individual as a corporate brand

Minicase 2.2 Warburtons a brand built on family values

Part 3 Corporate communication

The dimensions of corporate communication

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Viewpoint 9.1 More than a Shell of corporate communication

Establishing the scope of corporate communication

Reasons to use corporate communication

Viewpoint 9.2 Using photographs to impel strategic change

Dimensions of corporate communication

Viewpoint 9.3 Rebranding the Royal & Sun Alliance

The roles and tasks of corporate communication

Viewpoint 9.4 RWE uses corporate communication in a merger

Viewpoint 9.5 MDA communicate change

Corporate communication activities

Integrated corporate communication

Viewpoint 9.6 Integrating Microsofts communication

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Contexts for corporate communication

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

The influence of culture on corporate communication

Viewpoint 10.1 Global growth through corporate culture

Viewpoint 10.2 Are these oily corporate values?

Communication climate

Viewpoint 10.3 Philips simply making sense out of tradition

Communicating corporate objectives: vision and mission

Criteria for effective corporate communication

The corporate identity mix

Table of Contents

Messages and organisational positioning

Viewpoint 10.4 Far from being saucy, the HP story

Communicating corporate responsibility

Viewpoint 10.5 M&S take full responsibility

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Symbols, tools and the media

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Message framing

Viewpoint 11.1 Obesity youve been framed

The use of symbols in developing corporate reputation

Viewpoint 11.2 British Airways in a tailspin

Rebranding for strategic change

The tools for corporate communication

Viewpoint 11.3 The flexibility of corporate advertising

Viewpoint 11.4 Oily support for corporate sponsorships

Cause-related marketing

Viewpoint 11.5 Cause its the right thing to do

Media for corporate communication

Viewpoint 11.6 Using media to differentiate and grow

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Methods of corporate communication

Aims and learning objectives

Introduction

Investor relations

Viewpoint 12.1 In-house and personal investor relations at SingTel

Public affairs

Viewpoint 12.2 Try Google for lobbying

Internal communications

Viewpoint 12.3 Microsoft look through yet more windows

Managing customers media relations

Viewpoint 12.4 Authoritative Greenpeace

Table of Contents

Issues management

Viewpoint 12.5 Putting the squeeze on blackcurrant juice

Defensive or crisis communications

Viewpoint 12.6 Communicating the withdrawal of Vioxx

Measuring corporate communication

Chapter summary

Discussion questions

References

Minicases for Part 3

Minicase 3.1 Marks & Spencer Plan A sustainability strategy

Minicase 3.2 Primark defending a reputation with social media

Index