

Péter Cserne / Miklós Könczöl /
Marta Soniewicka (eds.)

The Rule of Law and the Challenges to Jurisprudence

Central and Eastern European Forum for Legal,
Political, and Social Theory Yearbook

Contents

|              |   |
|--------------|---|
| Contributors | 7 |
|--------------|---|

|              |   |
|--------------|---|
| Introduction | 9 |
|--------------|---|

Part I    Re-reading the Classics

|                                                                                                                                  |    |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| The Relationship of Natural Law and Natural Rights: Organic,Contingent, or Logically Contradictory?Szilárd Tattay | 17 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|

|                                                                                                      |    |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| International Coercion and the Requirement of an InternationalRule of LawVerena Risse | 28 |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|

Part II    Jurisprudential Methodology

|                                                             |    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| The Subject Matter of JurisprudenceGoran Dajović | 41 |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|----|

|                                                                              |    |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Is 'Naturalised' Methodology in Legal Theory Helpful?Luka Burazin | 50 |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|

Part III    Legal Reasoning and Objectivity

|                                                                       |    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Objectivity as Coherence in Practical DiscourseLidia Rodak | 65 |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|----|

Part IV     Judiciary, Legitimacy, Democracy

|                                                                                                                                         |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Within Democracy's Reach? Revisiting Some Objectionsto Judge-made LawTilen Štajnpihler                                   | 89  |
| A New Trend in the Debate on Justifying Judicial Review:Considering the Benefits of Judicial ReasoningÁgnes Kovács       | 101 |
| Between Reflexivity and Effectiveness: Dilemmas of the DemocraticLegitimacy of Constitutional JusticeKrzysztof J. Kaleta | 113 |

Part V     The Boundaries of Criminal Justice

|                                                                                                                                      |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Shielding Criminal Justice from PoliticsMojca M. Plesničar                                                                | 127 |
| Introduction of Criminal Law Powers in Other Legal Procedures:A Convenient Bypass for Obtaining Evidence?Sabina Zgaga | 138 |